CCLI Song # 7037330

- 1 The Mighty One, the Lord, has stirred
And summons all the earth;
The heavens shout His righteousness
And all-surpassing worth.
"What right have you to claim my Law
In vain religious cries?
O you who have forgotten me-
Your judgment shall arise."
- 2 No mortal dare approach the throne
Of Him who dwells in light;
Such holy majesty abounds
That angels veil their sight.
Should rebels such as us presume
Upon His leniency
And hope that when the judgment comes
A Father's smile to see?
- 3 But God's eternal love declared
A fierce and holy war
Upon the justice I deserved
His favor to restore.
The Christ took my unrighteousness,
Was punished in my place,
And won my right to one day see
His Father's smiling face.
- 4 Behold, the day of vengeance nears-
The wrath of God shall come;
Though man will hide and quake in fear
I shall not be undone;

For lo- the One who leads this charge
Will rush to my defense
And shield me from the final war
In His own righteousness.
